"I love what I do because it's literally sional and intervention specialist. "I the most rewarding thing I could ever want them to know that with me they're think of. My students make just as big safe and that they are important and cared about above anything else."

That love for her students and what she is able to do every day is just one of the many reasons Anderson was named 2022 the Recognizing Inspiring School Employees (RISE) awardee in a ceremony on Feb. 23, featuring a presentation from U.S. Secretary of Education Miguel Cardona, via Zoom, Gov. Mark Gordon and Brian Schroeder, the state's newly appointed superintendent of public instruction.

"Keeley is a true inspiration, and I congratulate her for her commitment to the students in Newcastle, Wyoming," Schroeder said. "That she is able to

Manders requests psych evaluation

Alexis Barker NLJ News Editor

Paul Manders, of Osage, has requested a psychological evaluation to determine his "fitness to proceed," according to court documents dated Feb. 15. The 52-year-old is accused of shooting Vernon Clyde, of Osage, on July 27.

As previously reported, Manders had called 911 to report that he had shot Clyde, in what was said to be the conclusion of an ongoing property dispute between the two men.

On Sept. 30, during his arraignment in Weston County's Sixth Judicial District Court, Manders pleaded not guilty to the charged crime.

In a handwritten letter to the court, dated Feb. 7, Manders said he would like to make a change to his plea from not guilty by self-defense to not guilty by illness or deficiency. "I aquired brain trauma as to where I lost control of my mental faculties as I was unaware of my surroundings to as knowing or comprehending what happening and in the unforeseeable future of lacking the ability to properly process information and or comprehend it," Manders said.

In a subsequent letter, dated Feb. 14, Manders said that his attorney, Rick Weisheimer, is sending him to the Wyoming State Hospital for evaluation. In the same letter, he also requested that his lawyers be replaced, citing incompetency. According to District Court Clerk Tina Cote, no future court dates are scheduled at this time.

fighter, Gov. Mark Gordon has declared March 8 as Fireman Gene Diedtrich Day. Gordon presented the proclamation in a short ceremony at the Newcastle Volunteer Fire Department Fire Hall on Feb. 23.

Diedtrich began his fire-fighting venture one year before he met his wife, Joyce, and has continued to serve as a Newcastle volunteer firefighter for the past 60 years. Last year, the longtime firefighter was one of the first four inductees into the newly created Wyoming Firefighters Hall of Fame.

Diedtrich joined the Newcastle Volunteer Fire Department in December 1961. He is still an active member and has held all the department's elective offices, including serving as chief for six years.

In addition to serving the Newcastle and Weston County community, Diedtrich played an integral role in getting Wyoming - Gene Diedtrich

"In 1994, the group expanded its officer positions and created an executive secretary position. I have served as the executive secretary since the position was formed," he said.

Diedtrich has also received the Distinguished Service Honor Roll award in 2000 from the Newcastle Fire Department. He received the Fireman of the Year award in 2000 and a gold-plated commemorative ax for 50 years of service. He also was awarded a certificate of accomplishment by the state of Wyoming.

Despite his 60 years of service, Diedtrich said during the presentation that he has no plans to retire, that he is still going strong and loves serving his community and the state of Wyoming.

"Sixty years is pretty good; I'm about halfway there," Diedtrich said, while wiping tears from his eyes.

NHS students attend state music conference

Avery Chick NLJ Intern

For three days in January (16-18), three Newcastle High School students attended the Wyoming Music Educators Association's 75th State Music Conference in Rock Springs.

The conference allowed the musicians around the state. In order to qualify for the event conference, all three students had to pass an in-person audition at Thunder Basin High School a few weeks preceding the conference. The students who would receive the musical accolades were Maggie Lorenz, Duncan Cox and Avery Chick.

With two weeks of the 66th Legislature's budget session over, Sen. Ogden Driskill, R-Devils Tower, said that the Senate planned to wrap up Senate files on Monday, Feb. 28. Friday, Feb. 25, was the last day for bills to be heard by the Committee of the Whole in the house of origin, according to Sen. Cheri Steinmetz, R-Lingle.

This means, she said, that bills from the House will cross over to the Senate and Senate files will cross over the House.

"We have already received the Redistricting Bill from the House, which is House Bill 100," Steinmetz said in an email. "This bill contains a 62-House member and which adds three legislators to the current makeup of the legislature. Redistricting will be debated in the Senate in the coming week."

She noted that Sen. Charles Scott, R- Casper, has introdiscussion at some point.

has had tons of turns and changes over the past few months and he expects to see more of the same as the Senate began debate on the bill Monday, Feb. 28.

"The most major difference is whether the body stays with 30 senators and 60 house members as has been the case for the past 30 plus years or goes forward as from the house with an additional two house seats and a new senate seat," Driskill said in an email. "This is not new and was 31-Senate member plan, in place in the past. The 62-31 makes it much easier for the state to meet federal guidelines for numbers of people under the one person one vote court decision."

In addition to working on redistricting for the state, duced a 30-House, 60-Senator Driskill said that the Senate plan that will surely enter the has passed Senate File 1, the budget for the state of

In the Feb. 3 edition of the News Letter Journal, in the front page story "Mental health care access lacking" the amount received by Weston County School District No. 1 was $12,700, $10,000 from the Nunn Grant and $2,700 in match from community donors.

In the Feb. 24 edition of the News Letter Journal in the front page story "District elections coming in May" it was listed that all board openings on the Weston County Health Services Board of Trustees are four year terms. In fact, there is one two-year term and both Loa Dickinson and Jamie Farnsworth are running for that seat.

The actions of the Russian leader harken images of Hitler and World War II, and demonstrate the falsehood of the notion that the nations of this planet would never allow themselves to be plunged into such a conflict again.

At the same time, the response of the world to Putin's aggression should give us hope that our leaders — and mankind - have learned from our long and tortured history. The fact that so many nations are responding so forcefully to Russia indicates that we may have learned at least some of the lessons from our past, and it appears that the international just an international incident, and it is our hope that we can learn lessons from the internal divisions within that nation as well. Those divisions were exploited and magnified by that same foreign autocrat, who manipulated Ukrainians into conflict with each other so he could use it as an excuse to intervene and bring the world to the brink of war.

Throughout our history, Americans have responded to threats or tragedies by coming together with fellow Americans to overcome our grief and fear and emerge better and stronger from whatever trial we've faced. It is no secret that our nation has become divided in the 21st century, and there should be no more argument about whether or not Vladimir Putin contributed to that division — just as he did in Ukraine.

We hope that Putin's forces will be turned back quickly, and with an absolute minimum of bloodshed and human loss, but we pray just as fervently that the ultimate folly of Putin's action is that it stems the tide of division he worked so hard to create in our own nation by triggering America's instinct to unify and embrace each other when we've been harmed or threatened.

Vladimir Putin spent a bunch of years and a whole lot of money and resources trying to divide us, and regardless of what happens in eastern Europe, the best way to beat Putin over the long-term is to commit ourselves to putting the "United" back into the United States of America.

the timeless and transcendent purpose of education.

"To learn! We go to school to learn." And I would say to them, "That's right! (dramatic pause) But that is only half right!" Then I would write those two words on the board: T-O L-E-A-R-N. And without saying anything else (another dramatic pause), I would write two more words on the board: T-O T-H-I-N-K. And then I'd say, "That's the other half." Put those two together, and you have the purpose of education: to learn ... to think. To learn from others. to think for oneself. The focus of learning is observation while thinking is all about experimentation.

But the kind of education that Lewis and his contemporaries received was never a onedimensional proposition. Training the mind was the priority, but so was improving the heart. In the old school, teaching virtue was not just a good idea, it was very much at the core of what it meant to be educated, what it meant to be human. Because in the great historic tradition of both this country and Western Civilization, becoming more educated was part and parcel with becoming more human — you could not (and did not) separate the two.

And so, guarding a child's heart from anything that could hurt it or poison it or confuse it or unforgiving is a lot to ask, especially of those who already have a very full plate. But it is part of the teacher's calling and just as important (if not more) as teaching critical thought or cultural literacy.

Moreover, what goes on in the homes of our nation, and by extension, the schools, is at the foundation of everything else that happens in our country. Our 16th president was very aware of the inexorable link between our schools and our society, and his perspective on the matter has very much informed my own.

Lincoln said, "The philosophy of the schoolroom in one generation becomes the philosophy of government in the next." Packed into that timeless piece of social prophecy is both a reminder and a warning. In be overstated because it serves both. When fulfilling its role, it strengthens both our homes and our society. When it does not, it weakens both.

Second, ideas have consequences, which means worldviews matter, which also means not all views are equally valid. The ability to discern must be nurtured in our homes, fostered in our schools and applied in society.

And third, by serving our schools, we are serving our country. So the role of our nation's teachers is as critical and consequential as those in the military or public service. The work of a teacher, day after day after day, shapes the very future of our country because it shapes the very characters and perspectives of our young

Brian Schroeder: Education's timeless purpose

As a classroom teacher, I would typically conduct the following ritual with my students on the first day of school. I would ask them what the purpose of school was. I would say to them, "tell me, in a nutshell, why do we have schools ... why do you go to school?" After a variety of creative (and hilarious) answers, invariably, they would say, on knowledge, the focus of thinking is on wisdom. To learn in reading is about learning how to read; to think in reading is about distinguishing what is worth reading. Learning in math means computation, thinking in math means application. In history, learning is about what happened, thinking is about who told you what happened. In science, learning is all about or distract it was just as much a part of the classroom teacher's essential work as stimulating a child's mind. Yet while the social-emotional development of our students is part of "the heart work" needed in working with a child, we all know heart work is hard work. Developing kindness, patience or a spirit of forgiveness in a child that is by nature unkind, impatient that one succinct phrase, Lincoln was saying at least three things:

First, the schoolhouse is uniquely positioned between the home and society. As an extension of and support for the former, it is also an incubator for and bridge to the latter. Since the home is the cornerstone of society, and society is the structure of civilization, the role of the schoolhouse can't people.

So Mr. Lewis' incredible mind points us to the purpose of education as it relates to our students, while Mr. Lincoln's insightful words highlight the purpose of education as it relates to our schools. Though towering figures from the past, they still serve us well for the future. May we heed their legacy with equal conviction and wisdom.

Making sure I exercise my voice in government s a young person in the United States, I have already seen many opportunities to access those who represent me in government — whether through TeenPact Leadership Schools I have attended in the past or through opportunities I have while working at the News Letter Journal. However, regardless of who you are, there are always numerous ways in which you can contact government leaders — a uniquely American opportunity that all of us need to be taking advantage of.

How are our leaders, whether on a national, state or local level, supposed to know what is important to those they represent unless we tell them? Being involved in our local governments doesn't always mean running for office (although that is an important part too.) A lot of the time it just means being involved, educated and aware of what's going on because it impacts us and our future.

In the past, I've had the opportunity to hear from various members of the Wyoming State Legislature and other state office holders through TeenPact and have been privileged to ask them industries often rely heavily on questions.

Last week, as Gov. Mark Gordon was in Newcastle to present a national award to a staff member of Newcastle Middle School, I also had the opportunity to ask him a couple of questions that were important to me about some of his energy initiatives in the state of Wyoming. In his requested budget, Gordon asked for "the ability to access $100 million so we can be ready to ... seize the opportunities that match federal and private investments in large-scale energy projects that will help us innovate and grow our mineral and energy economies," quoted from this year's state of the state address given to the 66th Wyoming State Legislature on Feb. 14. My question to the governor, knowing of his interest in alternative energy sources, was if he plans to use that money to invest in those alternative and renewable energy sources like wind and solar. My concern is whether that is a wise investment for the state of Wyoming, not because those industries couldn't be valuable but because those government subsidies because they can't secure private investors.

Fortunately, Gordon said that's not his plan for those funds as of now.

"Primarily it's for hydrogen, or for carbon capture and sequestration. Both of those are DOE (Department of Energy) grants that will be coming our way, and we wanted to have those dollars available for that," the governor said.

He went on to explain that wind has a lot of opportunities because of the tax credit for it, and solar, he said, seems to be getting plenty of investments.

"So they don't really need our help over the top of it. But, you know, as I said in the state of the state, we're all-of-the-above energy," he continued.

My other question was in response to his statement in the state of the state that said "innovation, not regulation is our way forward to give our nation the energy it requires and simultaneously solving the world's climate concerns." Gordon also mentioned opportunities for "advanced nuclear; carbon capture utilization and sequestration"

While the concept of lowering carbon emissions can seem good at face value, my concern is that these initiatives could just result in more red tape, regulations, and fines for our coal and oil producers in this state. My dad works in the oil field, and I know many people who also work in those energy industries, so these things have a direct impact on many in the state. Not to mention impacts on the consumer as well — if spending for coal and oil producers goes up to meet these goals of reducing carbon emissions, the cost of coal and oil for the consumer goes up as a result. Gordon did say that he did not see this resulting in more regulations. He also stated that if we want to reach goals of reducing greenhouse gases, we need to start implementing things like this now. "The important thing with the technology for carbon capture and sequestration is we have to put it in place. ... If we can build a marketplace for that, and if we can make sure that the marketplace then supports CCUS (carbon capture, utilization and storage), it should bring that cost down. And that's really where I think the long term is. And when I say innovation, not regulation, it's innovation to create the marketplace.... We need to establish verifiable sequestration. And so, the hope then is that by innovating a new market, you will actually have a durable market."

I was very glad to hear he didn't plan to regulate more. We definitely need people who understand that increased regulation isn't the way for these producers. However, I do have concerns that that's inevitable at least to some extent at some point in the future. What happens if it doesn't become a marketplace? Will it be regulated then?

And then, of course, there's the fact that I, as a Christian who believes God created the earth, don't believe our greenhouse gases are an issue, at least not to the point we make it. Of course, we should be good stewards of the resources God gave us, but we were given the earth and its resources to use, and I also don't believe we have the power to destroy the earth as some are concerned.

But overall, my short conversation with the governor was a very good experience, and I appreciate his willingness to visit with me and listen to my questions. As members of a democratic republic, we should all take advantage of those opportunities to influence government and keep in touch with those who are representing us.

The nice temperature on Feb. 12 brought adults and kids to the Par Pacific Wyoming Refining Co. Ice Rink, which is tucked in behind the Loaf 'n Jug plaza off Washington Boulevard in Newcastle. Skaters can bring their own skates or rent them for a nominal fee. Billy Jackson was available to help skaters get the correct size and kind of skates they desired. With recent warmer weather, there may not be many more opportunities to ice skate until next winter, although plans are to keep the rink open as much as possible between now and the end of March.

School Superintendent Doug Cobb explained some facts of educational life to parents and teachers at last Wednesday's school board meeting. Declining enrollments combined with stagnant funding have left the Newcastle school system with little maneuvering room.

The Newcastle City Council voted to purchase a $250,000 fire truck at their regular meeting on Monday. But Fire Chief Bob Fawcett told the council that with the money he has set aside for the past few years and with the help of a matching grant, the city need only kick in $80,000 out of their current budget. Petite and dimpled, Dessa Taylor doesn't fit the textbook image of a brainy kid. No horn-rimmed glasses. No plastic pocket protector sticking out of her shirt pocket. Her fingers aren't even ink-stained. But Newcastle's first National Merit Scholar finalist in about 20 years has a 4.0 grade point average and is the likely candidate for valedictorian of the Class of 1997.

The Newcastle Boys' Basketball Team finished its regular season this weekend, losing tightly fought contest to the Glenrock Herders. The game opened with both teams exchanging baskets on their way to a 16 to 16 tie at the end of the first quarter.

The Newcastle Freshman Girls basketball team finished third out of eight teams in a recent tournament. In the first game of competition against Rawlins the girls won 65-39. Scoring for Newcastle was Melissa Christensen with 20 in a tough battle throughout the state meet in Cheyenne as they won the crown by only one and one-half points over Thermopolis, the 1971 champions with 75 1/2 points.

A Cowboy Joe Club meeting will be held Thursday, Mar. 9, at the Newcastle Country Club. The Newcastle Sideline Club is sponsoring the dinner-meeting for the Cowboy Joe Club.

The Newcastle Dogies won the Absaraka basketball conference last weekend with wins over Douglas and Lusk. The Dogies ended the regular season with a 7-1 conference record

On Feb. 23, Wyoming Gov. Mark Gordon, accompanied by newly appointed State Superintendent of Public Instruction Brian Schroeder and several other members of his staff, came to Newcastle to recognize both Keeley Anderson and Gene Deidtrich (see Page 1). During his visit the group met with Weston County School District No. 1 staff, students and board members, toured the local schools and met with the Newcastle Volunteer Fire Department to present Diedtrich with an award. The group began their visit with a luncheon at Newcastle Lodge & Convention Center, sponsored by WCSD No. 1, where Schroeder spoke to attendees and expressed his pleasure with the people and state of Wyoming.

Newcastle Middle School intervention specialist Keeley Anderson posed for photos with NMS Principal Tyler Bartlett, Weston County School District No. 1 Superintendent Brad LaCroix, Gov. She allows her students to succeed, and that in itself is a true testament to her character." Notified during a surprise presentation and surrounded by coworkers, students and family, Anderson wiped tears from her face as Cardona announced her as the winner. "Education support professionals deserve appreciation today and every day. Especially amid the pandemic, their contributions to school communities have been extraordinary and have helped schools remain open for in-person learning," Cardona said. "It's an honor for me to present Keeley with this well-deserved award." "It is an honor to be able to recognize someone who is dedicated to her school community," Gordon said during the presentation. "Keeley's tireless commitment to encourage students and her willingness to take on additional duties reflects the excellence of Wyoming's school employees, whose actions have lasting positive impacts on students' lives." Anderson began her career as a substitute teacher with Weston County School District No. 1 in 2016. She worked as a special education paraprofessional the following year until she took her current position as intervention specialist in 2019. As an intervention specialist, according to a press release announcing her award, she works to prioritize students in the school who need additional support to be successful. Anderson also leads Newcastle Middle School's in-school-suspension program, works in the district's summer maintenance department and served as head volleyball coach at Newcastle High School. During the pandemic, Anderson took on even more duties as she became the key communicator and liaison for students placed on quarantine. She helped them to manage their work remotely and transition back into the classroom. A 2009 graduate of Newcastle High School, Anderson grew up in the community and Superintendent Brad LaCroix said that her grandma, Ann Sedgwick, had once told him that she was going to work for him one day. He is happy that he was able to experience something like that with Anderson. "The biggest thing to say about her, at least from my side, is she has always been blessed with incredible talent and that day (award day) we actually got to celebrate that particular individual being recognized for everything she does for voung people and it was on a national stage. I believe that is a first, at least for me, and I know it was a first for her," LaCroix said. "She is an amazing young woman who has done great things for our young people, and we hope she continues

"Keeley has a unique ability to connect with students and get them to see that she is on their side," said Tyler Bartlett, Newcastle Middle School principal and nominator. "She helps instill qualities like integrity and character, while empowering students to advocate for themselves and learn how to solve their own problems. Ironically, it is when her students no longer need her that we know she has succeeded."

Anderson, who was still shocked 12 hours after the presentation, said she couldn't do everything she does without the support of the school, staff and students.

"I feel incredibly thankful to be a part of Newcastle Middle School and to have a boss like Tyler," she said. "He always makes sure that we all know how appreciated we are, no matter what our role is at NMS. The Recognizing Inspiring School Employees, or RISE award, was created by Congress with the Recognizing Achievement in Classified School Employees Act in April 2019. The act states that "prior to May 31 each year ... the Secretary (of education) shall select a classified school employee to receive the Recognizing Inspiring School Employees Award for the year," according to a press release from the U.S. Department of Education.

During the annual award's second year, Anderson was selected from 25 nominations across 15 states. Nominees included employees in various departments, including paraprofessionals, clerical and administrative services, transportation services, food and nutrition services, custodial and maintenance services, security services, health and student services, technical services and skilled trade professionals.

"Governors' offices determined their state-specific process for selecting up to two nominees, and they will again be asked to submit nominees by Nov. 1, documenting excellence in the following areas: a) Work performance; b) School and community involvement; c) Leadership and commitment; d) Local support (from co-workers, school administrators, community members, etc., who speak to the nominee's exemplary work); and e) Enhancement of classified school employees' image in the community and schools," the release states.

More information on the award, including how to submit nominations for the 2022-23 cycle, is available on the U.S. Department of Education website.

The Dogie Dome was rocking for both of the Lady Dogies' contests last week. Thursday was the rematch against the second ranked Lady Bearcats from Douglas, and on Saturday it was the Buffalo Lady Bison. Both of these games were great for head coach Chad Ostenson's team to have as they prepare for the 3A East Regional tournament this weekend.

Against the Lady 'Cats, Newcastle started out with the lead and aside from a 6-6 tie in the first quarter, never relinquished it. Like the first time they played, the Lady Dogies held as much as a 12-point lead over Douglas, but in the end, came away with a 58-46 victory which is 3 points more than their margin of victory a few weeks ago.

Both teams had to adjust to some tight officiating in the contest as the refs blew the whistle early and often. Newcastle succeeded in doing so more quickly than Douglas as their top two players, Lauren and Alli Olson, found themselves with two quick fouls early in the first quarter.

Lauren would pick up her third on a reach-in with about a minute off the clock in the second quarter which landed her on the bench for the remainder of the half.

fairly quickly, and I was really tickled that you could see our kids being juniors and adjusting where they had a few younger kids who it took a little longer," Ostenson began. "We also suffered some foul trouble with Tiernan [Stanton] and Jayde [Harrington], but we were able to adjust to that as well."

"We made the adjustment

Newcastle jumped out to an early lead after which Douglas tied it up, but the Lady Dogies ended their first quarter scoring slump and finished it off with the 10-8 lead. With Lauren on the bench, Ostenson's crew extended their lead to 26-17 at the end of the half.

"They were calling things pretty close, and the girls were able to capitalize on their opportunities in the first half," Ostenson said. "Then we stayed steady and just kept to business when they made their run in the third quarter."

And run the Lady 'Cats did when they emerged for second half action. Lauren Olson was back on the court and she quickly made up for lost time as she led her team on an 18-12 run against the Lady Dogies in the third quarter to draw within 3 by the time it came to a close. Fortunately, the Lady Dogies weathered that run and went on one of their own in the final frame athletes who were among those elite in China.

Closer to home, we were privileged to see some amazing victories from swimming, wrestling and basketball — and hopefully those victories are only getting started.

Performances that seriously blew my mind a couple of weeks ago came from the 3A State Swim Meet in Gillette.

Lander repeated as state champs for the 26th season in a row! Seriously, it's Lander's pool and we are all just swimming in it.

Lander senior Johnny Kulow broke two of his own state records going 20.07 in the 50 Freestyle and 44.56 in the 100 Free. His time in the 50 Free was less than a second away from breaking a national record. According to Dogie swim coach Doug Scribner, Kulow is headed to Arizona State University to season with only three losses, a regional championship and capped it off with a state championship in the 220 weight class. He led Newcastle/Upton to an 11th place finish at the 3A State Wrestling tournament last weekend with his 2-0 title win over Carson Tims of Mt. View, handing the senior his second loss of the season.

"My goal all year was to win the title, so that was my mind-set going in," Womack said. "I knew that I'd come this far and I had to leave everything out on the mat. I went as hard as I could and left no regrets."

His trip to the championship began with Womack dominating his opponents in the first and quarter-final rounds, where he wrestled a total of 1:02 between the two matches. In his semi-final round, Christian Peterson of Worland put up more of a fight, but Womack was able to get the pin at 5:25 into the match.

"I'd wrestled him at the beginning of the season, and he's a tough opponent and a really nice guy," Womack said, smiling. "I had to keep my momentum going and keep moving to stay in good position. He wanted to throw a big move on me, so I had to keep my hips underneath me."

From there, there was just one match standing between Womack and a state title.

"Josh wrestled a perfect state tournament. He made no mistakes," head coach Lee McCoy said. "The only time he's lost all season has been when he took a risk, so going into the

District to allow sixth-graders to compete in all sports

Alexis Barker NLJ News Editor

Sixth-graders at Newcastle Middle School will now be able to participate in all middle school sports, starting this spring season with track and soccer, following a vote by the can make their own decision Weston County School District No. 1 board of trustees on Feb. 23. Previously, the youngest grade level at the school was allowed to participate in three sports, cross-country, track and wrestling.

The decision to open athlete participation to all grade levels, according to Principal Tyler Bartlett, is driven by the desire to do what is best for the students, as well as increase interest in school sports.

"I'd say with every decision we make, we're trying to do what we think is best for kids. I think above all else, we hope that allowing sixth graders to participate in all sports helps make their middle school experience that much more enjoyable and beneficial," Bartlett told the News Letter Journal. "In my time at the middle school, we've generally seen that students who are involved in a variety of extracurricular activities are also the ones that do better academically and behaviorally in the classroom, so hopefully this sets up our future sixth graders for even more success."

Sixth graders must learn to can be a challenge, Bartlett said, but sixth graders who have participated in various sports in the past proved that it can be done.

"None of the extracurricular activities we offer are required, so each child and their family about participating based on what they think is best," Bartlett said.

In addition, allowing sixth graders to participate in school sports will hopefully allow for a better experience for all students and athletes who can now, hopefully, count on more stable participation numbers, he said.

"Over the past several years, we've seen the number of participants decrease in a variety of sports and in most communities," Bartlett said. "The schools in our athletics district (Upton, Moorcroft, Sundance, Wright and Hulett), have allowed sixth graders to participate in sports for some time now. The same is true for South Dakota schools like Custer and Lead-Deadwood."

"So, in some ways, we're just now following suit with surrounding communities. By allowing sixth graders into our programs, we're also potentially easing the burden on club and rec teams that usually must be run by parent volunteers," he continued. "And of course, this also will hopefully help build cohesion and continegotiate a new school, which nuity in our athletics programs grades 6-12."

There will be some initial cost for additional equipment, supplies and coaches, but Bartlett said that it should be negligible in the grand scheme of things. Carrie Manders, the district's activities director, told the trustees on Feb. 23 that she estimated $10,000 would be needed to prepare the sports for additional players.

"Perhaps the biggest concern might be that we'll need more coaches and more officials, so we're hoping interested adults will contact the school to learn more about officiating or coaching opportunities at the middle school." Bartlett said. "Our coaches, teachers, students and parents will have to navigate this change together. We'll start seeing what it looks like this spring, and we'll do the best we can to provide a great experience to anyone who is interested. There will certainly be a learning curve, but we'll try to anticipate potential challenges and learn from the mistakes we make along the way."

Any middle school parents with questions, ideas or concerns are encouraged to reach out to Bartlett at the school directly, as is anyone interested in becoming a coach or official for any of the sports offered at the school.

On Friday, Weston County Library hosted a "Star Party" at LAK Lake. Along with the 4.5-inch Orion Starblast telescope that was given to the library, astronomers Daniel and Janet Pullen also brought their 8- to 10-inch Orion Dobsonian scopes for the participants to look through. Daniel gave a tour of about 12 different deep-sky objects ranging from double stars to clusters, to the great Orion Nebula for about a dozen observers to enjoy. Above, Daniel Pullen attaches a lens to a 10-inch Dobsonian Telescope. The Pullens prefer to use the Dobsonian reflector style of scope because of their lightweight construction and ease of set-up and use.

The 400 Free Relay from Lander also set another state record and Kulow went under 44 seconds in his anchor leg of the race. I'm thinking we have a shot at seeing Johnny on that world stage in the 2024 Summer Olympics.

Weston County has also been represented well. The Upton Bobcats cruised through the regional tournament as champs for the 1A East last weekend, and look poised to repeat as state champs. Is there even any competition out there for the Bobcats?

Newcastle's Josh Womack finished his senior season on Saturday with only three losses and was not only 3A East Regional champion in the 220-pound weight class, but then rolled through the 3A State Tournament to take home a state championship as well.

Womack cruised a little under the radar all season, as he was ranked only third in the state. But at Casper last weekend, he left no doubt as to who was the best.

Then the Lady Dogies finished their regular season on Saturday with only one loss, and went undefeated in the state of Wyoming. There has never been a better regular season record during my 23-year tenure here in Newcastle.

It looked like Buffalo was going to get the better of them on Saturday, but the girls embodied the "Never Say Die, Dogie" mantra as they came from behind making an 8-point run with just 1:21 to play to win their final game of the season by just 1 point.

This talented group of young ladies may also be poised to make history for Newcastle basketball in the next couple of weekends, and I plan to be there to watch it happen.

If you're a sports fan, or even if you're not, these moments where people display such talent, determination, commitment, guts, grit, and every other descriptor you can think of just makes you feel good about being a part of the human race.

Dogies end season with momentum

Sonja Karp NLJ Sports Editor

The Dogies had to run the gauntlet in their final week of the regular season as they hosted the No. 1-ranked Douglas Bearcats on Thursday, and the No. 5-ranked Bison of Buffalo on Saturday.

Both teams pulled off big, decisive wins over Newcastle in their first meetings this season, and were able to get two more wins in the Dome — Douglas 74-41 and Buffalo 58-40 — however the Dogies had a much better showing against each, and ended their final game of the regular season with some momentum.

"They are two good basketball teams for sure, especially the Douglas team," began head coach Allen Von Eye. "They throw a lot at you from scoring from so many positions, to shooting so well from the

that it makes it hard on your defense.'

The Bearcats showed the depth of their talent by jumping out to a 21-9 lead by the end of the first quarter, and subbing five-for-five players regularly throughout the game. With fresh legs and deep talent, they extended their lead to 44-20 by the half.

"They are an incredibly deep team with at least 10 guys on their roster who are talented enough to start," Von Eye said. "And somewhere on the floor there was consistently a mismatch and Douglas did a great job of identifying and attacking our weaknesses."

The Dogies also struggled offensively in the first half. They turned the ball over 11 times to Douglas' one in the first two quarters of play, and then when they did get themselves a good look inside, or perimeter from so many guys, on the perimeter, they struggled to finish to put points on the board.

Hogan Tystad attacked the ball down court with his Bison defender riding his hip. Tystad and his team played a great

> "When you can't get those easy buckets and then you turn it over, it makes it hard. But we came out in the second half and played better," Von Eye said. "We battled, and did some good things, but that really is a tough team. You are going to have to play some really solid basketball to get done what you need to against them, and they are the number one team for a reason."

The Bearcats led at the last two quarter stops, 61-30 at the third and ended the contest with a 74-41 win.

"I was just really happy that we fought until the end," Von Eye said. "We had that effort for 32 minutes and we got to throw a couple of things out there that we wanted to see in live action before regionals so that was good, too."

The Dogies finished with eight players in the scoring column led by Hayden Overman with 11 followed by Slade Roberson with 8. Aidan Chick and Hogan Tystad were next with 7 points each, Neil Whitney added 4, Braden Jenkins 2 and Avery Chick and Tate Engle each chipped in 1 point apiece.

For their final regular season game, the Dogies took on the Bison on Saturday. Though they are ranked as the No. 5 team in 3A, Von Eye insisted they are not the same caliber team as Douglas. "They are a good team and their defense is really good, but we also know they are a beatable team," he said. "But, we came out hesitant and on our heels. They extend their zone out on us on top and on the wings which makes it challenging to get the ball inside."

Again, the Dogies struggled on the offensive end of the court in the first half and ended up down 9-29 at the half.

"They were the aggressor for sure in the first half, but it still felt like we should have been in the game," said Roberson. "We were getting to the hoop and we had good outside looks too, but ferent story as the Dogies came out on a mission.

"We dug ourselves a 20-point hole in the first half, but we came out and really battled in the second half and we won it in all aspects of the game," Von Eye said. "We came out with a good offensive possession and followed it with a good defensive possession and then you could see that confidence begin to rise."

The Dogies were then on the attack mode and good things began to happen. No longer was there any hesitation and it showed in their offensive game, which was night and day from the first half.

"We got ramped up and our energy was where it needed to be in the second half," Avery Chick said. "We were getting touches, deflections, traps and stuff. I feel like we've been getting away from that and from being aggressive on defense, so it's great we were able to bring it back since we are going into regionals."

The Dogies out-scored Buffalo 17-13 in the third quarter and in the fourth cut the Bison's lead to 14 before giving up a few points to end the game in an 18 point deficit. The offense for the Dogies was driven by Roberson and the second half.

"At halftime, Coach V just told me to get out of my own way, because I wasn't scoring like I'm capable of in the first half," admitted Aidan. "But, it seems like it's easier to take those shots and those chances when we're losing because then there's no pressure about messing up, but if we can score in the first half like we do in the second, it's a whole different game."

Roberson ended the game leading his team with 17, and Aidan was close behind with 13. Tystad and Engle each had 4 and Overman chipped in 2 on the night.

opening contest which is a good draw for the Dogies, having split with them on the season.

"This is the most fun time of the season, and everyone's record comes in 0-0," Von Eye said. "This is when you see who wants it the most."

"The stars kind of aligned perfectly for us this weekend, and we like our bracket a lot." Aidan said. "We've got nothing to lose and we want to prove people wrong who are counting us out."

"We have a pretty good game plan for Wheatland and I'm pretty excited for that one," Roberson added. "I also feel good about taking on Burns or Thermopolis, and realistically all of our records are 0-0 and regionals is a whole different beast, so I'm excited."

Stanton fouled out at the end of the third quarter and Harrington at the start of the fourth, so it was up to the smaller players to finish it out — and they stepped up to that challenge.

"When Tiernan fouled out, Jayde was the next man up and she did well. Then when she fouled out, Bailey [Benshoof] came in and did a great job," Jaylen Ostenson said. "Just having those pieces is going to make our team go where we want to go."

In the fourth quarter there was never a doubt as to which team would prevail as Newcastle kept a firm grip on the game and turned the tables on Douglas, out-scoring them 18-13 to take the win.

Ostenson finished the night leading all scorers with 26 points, and MacKenzie Conzelman was next with 12. She was closely followed by Hunter McFarland with 10 while Shelby Tidyman added 8 points to her team's total.

Down 7 points with 1:21 to play may seem daunting, but the Lady Dogies took it all in stride to rally to a 1-point win over the Lady Bison in their final regular season game of the season on Saturday.

"I didn't expect much less because they are a good team," admitted Ostenson. "But, there are so many things that we did right against Buffalo. The mental part, the thinking part, the situational basketball, all came together for us."

The Lady Bison have flown under the radar for much of the season, but who could give his squad some problems — and they did.

"Buffalo's man-to-man defense is the best we've played against all year," said Jaylen Ostenson. "Their help defense is so good so it makes it tough for us to get into an offensive rhythm. They are a scary team because they have a lot of kids who can score and their defense is great."

sides of the court in the first half with Newcastle carrying a slim 1-point lead at the end of the first quarter and again at the end of the half as the Lady Dogies headed to the locker room with the 18-17 advantage.

The Lady Bison took the advantage in the third quarter, out-scoring Newcastle to finish up ahead 34-33 by the time the fourth quarter got underway.

From there the two teams traded blows but it would be in the final minutes of the game that things took a turn.

With 1:50 to play, Buffalo was able to extend their lead to 7 over Ostenson's crew, but it was then that the Lady Dogies went to work.

"None of us were really worked up or worried," Jaylen said. "But we knew we had to find a way to score and we knew that we had to play great defense."

With just 1:21 to go in the game, Buffalo scored their last point of the night and still held that 7-point lead. Ostenson hit one free-throw shortly after to get within 6 points and then, with 46 seconds on the clock, Conzelman hit only her second 3 of the night but it was a big one as it brought her team to within 3.

"I think that after Mack hit that 3 was when we really knew we could do it," Jaylen said. "From there it was just a matter of getting it done."

Next, it was a down-court pass from Ostenson to Conzelman who finished with a layup but couldn't Ostenson knew they would be a team hit her and-one opportunity so the Lady Dogies were down one with 39 seconds remaining.

> During the last two minutes, Newcastle had also sent the Lady Bison to the free-throw line several times in order to regain possession of the ball.

The next sequence of events guaranteed the win for Newcastle. Buffalo missed every time they stepped to the It was a defensive battle on both charity stripe, which added up to 10 missed points. Ostenson ended up with the ball on the floor in a scramble and called the team's last timeout with 31 seconds on the clock to save possession of the ball, and Tidyman calmly hit her only two free-throw attempts of the night to give her team a 1-point lead with 22 seconds left.

And the Lady Dogies had to get it all done without time-outs or without coaching from the sidelines because the Dome was too loud for players to hear anything their coach had to say.

"Chad preps us well for these lategame situations so I don't think any of us were really too worked up about it," said Conzelman, smiling. "We had the crowd going and that helped a lot and we knew who we needed to foul because we had a scouting report on them."

With 1.5 seconds to play, Jaylen was fouled and sent to the free-throw line with her team still up by 1.

"I missed my first one, and then I had to think about what to do next," Jaylen explained. "I looked at the time left and at the score and thought that it wouldn't be bad to miss the second one so that they didn't have a dead clock to put together a play."

Ostenson did just that and the Lady

Ostenson led her team with 22 points, Conzelman was next with 9 and Tidyman was close behind with 7. Stanton ended up with 6 while McFarland rounded out scoring with 2 points.

The final two battles of the regular season were just what the Lady Dogies needed as they prepare for the 3A East Regional Tournament this weekend in Burns. As the No. 1 seed from the Northeast Quadrant, Newcastle will tip off against the Lady Outlaws of Rawlins on Thursday at 10:30. A win match-up against the winner of the Buffalo/Burns opening game at 3 on Friday, while a loss would pit them against the loser of that contest.

"Now we start zero and zero," said coach Ostenson. "Regionals is a whole different beast so we will not overlook anyone."

"Yes we are the No. 1 seed so we have the No. 4 seed going in, but anything can happen at regionals," added Jaylen. "We just want to go out and do what we do every single day and hopefully things will take care of themselves."

Gillette man faces 18 years

GILLETTE (WNE) — A Gillette man could serve up to 18 years in prison for kidnapping and strangling his wife under a plea agreement reached earlier this month.

pleaded guilty to kidnapping and strangulation, both of which included a habitual criminal enhancement. He also pleaded guilty to possessing meth in a separate case after police found 28.1 grams of meth in his wife's pickup that he had recently driven.

Prosecutors will recommend imposed sentences of 11 to 18 years for kidnapping and 10 to 12 years for the strangulation charge, with all sentences to be served concurrently.

Officers got a call around 11:30 p.m. July 26 from a man Robbie C. Muller, 32, who said that Muller's wife called him saying, "He won't let me out of the car! He just tried to kill me!" according to court documents.

> Their 2018 Hyundai Sonata was spotted near the Gurley Overpass and officers tried making a traffic stop. Muller then took off at speeds of up to 65 mph, running a stop sign and veering into the BNSF railroad yard.

His wife later told police that he was singing the famous "Cops" anthem "Bad Boys" while fleeing officers, according to court documents.

The car eventually got stuck on the train tracks and Muller took off on foot. After a brief chase, he turned toward officers with his hands up and said, "Shoot me!" then, "Stop!" according to court documents. He then ran away again, until officers chased him down and detained him near the fire station.

championship match he was going to make Tims make the mistakes, and he did."

In the title match, Tims was giving Womack the respect he had earned throughout the season by trying to stay away from Womack and his signature fireman's throw.

Womack got a point for an escape in the second period and another point from Tims' stalling in both the first and second period, which gave him those 2 points overall. Tims almost got an escape in the third period, but Womack put him back on the mat and rode it out to take the win.

"There were a couple of close calls where Tims almost got to his feet, but Josh threw him back to the mat each time, holding him scoreless," McCoy explained. "He wrestled his match and there was no way the kid was going to beat him. It was pretty special and the perfect way to end a very good high school career."

Womack's win ended his senior season with a 47-3 record and his name being added to the Wall of Fame at NHS.

"It took me a second to realize it, but when the ref blew that final whistle, it hit me that I had just won a state title," Womack said. "It was pretty awesome."

Freshman Jackson East and junior Jacob Prell also placed for the Dogies/ Bobcats. East came out of the gates tough at 120, winning his way into the semi-finals before he ran into an opponent who got the better of him.

My goal all year was to win the title, so that was my mind-set going in," Womack said. "I knew that I'd come this far and I had to leave everything out on the mat. I went as hard as I could and left no regrets."

"Jackson had a great tournament and made the semi-finals, which was huge," McCoy said. "In the quarters, he wrestled a very good kid from Cody, and Jackson just did what he does. He's got a motor on him that just goes and goes, and the kid got gassed out and Jackson pinned him."

In the semi-final match, Jackson was up against the defending state champion who went on to repeat as state champion at the end of the weekend. East battled hard, refusing to give up the pin, but did lose the match by a major decision of 12-3.

from Rawlins in the consolation semifinals and he gave up the pin in 2:59 which moved him to the fifth- and sixth-place match where he once again faced Peterson from Cody. This time Peterson was able to get the better of East by a 16-6 major decision landing him with sixth place. "Jackson didn't wrestle his best in that match, and Peterson was ready for him this time," McCoy began. "But I was very happy with how he did, and as just a freshman, he has a promising career ahead of him."

Jacob Prell (160) also got a win in the first round with a pin over Weston Needham of Douglas in 5:28, but then dropped his quarter-finals by decision, 3-8. From there, he had to fight back through the wrestle-backs where he pinned a Torrington opponent in 4:08, then won by a 4-1 decision against Lannon Braselton of Powell in the blood round to guarantee a place at the state tournament.

"I'd seen the Torrington guy twice before and beat him both times, but coming in I was nervous because I knew what was riding on it," Prell admitted. "I wrestled a little defensively and then I was down points-wise in the second period but then came back to pin him."

In the consolation semi-finals, Prell fell to Morgan Hatch of Powell and then in the fifth- and sixth-place match he was once again up against Hazen Camino of Buffalo who defeated him for third place at the regional tournament last weekend.

Prell wrestled Camino tough and ended regulation tied at 1-1, forcing the "Haven won a couple of really tough matches and I was proud of how he competed," McCoy declared. "Aidan wrestled tough and beat a lot of people he wasn't supposed to beat, so that was a lot of fun."

Cael Holmes (126) and Cullen Davis (138) each won a match at the tournament before being sidelined while Kyah Miller (113), Walker Simianer (152) and Heath Henkle (220) went two and out.

"Cael had a rough season, but it doesn't define him. He continued to lead the team all season, which was pretty special," McCoy acknowledged. "I was super proud of our kids. They wrestled tough and we placed 11th as a team, which is pretty close to what I was thinking. I was hoping to place in the top 10, but we were pretty close, which is great and it was a good way to end the season."

The Dogies say goodbye to Womack, Holmes and Coberly as well as senior manager Isabella Spencer.

"Isabella turned into our team mom and was pretty important to our success. She wrestled a couple of years so understands the sport well," McCoy said. "She was a special manager and we will miss her as well as all our seniors."

match into overtime. Overtime in wrestling comes down to a sudden victory, meaning that whoever scores the first points wins, and Camino was able to get a takedown on Prell, thus ending the match with the win 3-1.

"He got a double leg on me, and I fought him for a little bit but he ended up taking me down for the win," Prell explained. "It was awesome to place and I have one more season ahead of me to hopefully win a state title. Placing is a great feeling and it's awesome to know that I made the top six out of the best 18 wrestlers in the state."

"All season, Jacob gave his all in every single match and that's what he continued to do throughout the whole tournament," McCoy said. "His last match could have gone either way and it was really great to see both kids leave every single bit of try out on the mat. I was very happy for both Jacob and Jackson. They've had outstanding seasons and really worked hard so they definitely earned their place on the podium."

Haven Vrana (106) and Aidan Coberly (145) each fought their way through the wrestle-backs only to fall in the blood round, just one match away from earning a place at the state tournament.

couldn't stop talking about how excited they were for next year and that they were sad it was already over," he continued. "They are still fired up and that's great for us as a team.
